State Veterans Home - Black Mountain Celebrates WWII veteran, Bernice Liverett

With a cake and fruit punch, WWII veteran Bernice Liverett celebrated her 103rd birthday in style last month inside the North Carolina State Veteran's Home – Black Mountain.

Dozens of birthday cards and treasured photographs of Bernice added to the joy.

Ms. Liverett served in World War II, helping in medical transportation. When asked for the secret to her longevity, Ms. Liverett simply said she goes to bed and wakes up the next day.

Celebrating High-Quality Health Care

It is an honor to care for those who have given so much in service of our nation. We are thrilled that North Carolina State Veterans Home – Black Mountain and North Carolina State Veterans Home – Fayetteville have been ranked among America’s Best Nursing Homes by Newsweek and U.S. News & World Report. We are grateful to the caregivers at all of our State Veterans Homes for their consistent commitment to providing the best care possible to every patient they serve.
Governor Cooper Proclaims Jan.10 "NC Children of Wartime Veterans Scholarship Day"

Did you know that the NC Children of Wartime Veterans Scholarship program was established in 1934?

More than 20k scholarships have been awarded to dependents of World War I, World War II, Korea, Vietnam, Desert Storm, Enduring Freedom, Iraqi Freedom, and the Global War on Terror veterans, and this year more than 2k dependents are currently approved to receive a scholarship.

Thanks to Governor Roy Cooper for proclaiming January 10, 2022, as "NC CHILDREN OF WARTIME VETERANS' SCHOLARSHIP DAY" in North Carolina, in recognition of this enduring program created for North Carolina children of Veterans pursuing higher education.

NC Museum of History opens display to honor the legacy of North Carolina's African American service members

Secretary Gaskin records welcome video detailing African American Military and Veterans Lineage project.

To coincide with Black History Month programming, the North Carolina Museum of History has opened a new temporary display, “We Wanted to Fight: Black North Carolinians in World War II” to commemorate the history of African American military service in North Carolina.

On view in the museum lobby beginning Feb. 1, the panel display honors the legacy of brave African American service members across North Carolina.

The temporary display is part of a joint grant project of the NC Department of Military and Veterans Affairs (NCDMVA), the North Carolina Museum of History, Elizabeth City State University School of Humanities and Social Sciences, and the State Archives of North Carolina Military Collection in recognition of the African American Military and Veterans Lineage Project.

NCDMVA will launch a series of digital actions throughout the month of February to elevate the program and engage the public through social media, a dedicated website landing page, print materials and other helpful resources.

Abigail Rainey Scrocco
Reserve Command Master Chief US Coast Guard Reserve Sector North Carolina

What prompted you to join the Coast Guard Reserve, instead of one of the four main branches of the military?

Back in high school in the 1980’s I thought of applying to one of the military academies, however I didn’t know any women in the military, and I rarely saw women in those roles. Fast forward to my late twenties and I was approached by my home contractor, who was also a Coast Guard Reservist. When he asked me if I’d ever thought of being in the Coast Guard Reserve it inspired my research. The Coast Guard proudly performs 11 missions, including the ones you normally think of such as Drug Interdiction, Search & Rescue, and Law Enforcement. However, I was most interested in the helpful missions they have, such as Marine Environmental Protection, Port & Waterway Security, Aids to Navigation, Living Marine Resources, and Marine Safety.

In your time as a reservist what has been one of your most memorable moments?

In 2010, I was deployed to Louisiana to assist with the Operation Deepwater Horizon oil spill. I had been working very hard for about 6 weeks and was offered an opportunity to go on an overflight to see the drilling rig and response from the air. The day I happened to be on the flight, the leak was successfully plugged. It was amazing and everyone celebrated!

What are a few things the Coast Guard Reserve taught you that you will carry with you as you transition out of the service?

One of my favorite mentors, Master Chief Angela Rodriguez gave me words of wisdom when I was going through Chiefs Initiation that I live by each day.

Here are a few of the most impactful lessons she shared that will benefit her as she retires from the USCG Reserve:

- Always take care of your people,
- Walk the walk,
- Rely on your network,
- Take time to listen,
- Be a good mentor.

What would you say to someone who is thinking about joining the Coast Guard Reserve?

Being a Reservist is truly rewarding. The Reserve provides opportunities to continue learning, meet great people, earn amazing benefits, and grow as a person, all while serving your country.

The North Carolina Department of Military and Veterans Affairs (NCDMVA) supports both active and reserve uniformed military personnel and their families; military installations and communities; and military veterans and their families in North Carolina. The Department seeks to provide timely and responsive engagement to enhance North Carolina's current military and veteran friendly environment. In addition, the Department also seeks to foster and promote business, technology, transportation, education, economic development, and healthcare for the above communities. Lastly, the Department works to accomplish these services by providing assistance and coordination between the Federal Government, the State of NC, its political subdivisions, and collaborative and supporting agencies.
